GOVERNING OUR BINATIONAL COMMONS: INSTITUTIONAL DEVELOPMENT AT THE U.S.-MEXICO BORDER

PRESENTED BY
DR. TONY PAYAN
RICE UNIVERSITY

Crossborder Governance (CBG) is a challenging endeavor because it juxtaposes contiguous geographical spaces, split by hard sovereign lines, where there may be very different economic, political, social, and cultural systems rubbing against each other, with issues straddling borderlines and demanding effective governance—from environmental and natural resource management to security, human mobility, trade, economic integration, infrastructure, interconnectivity, public health supervision, territorial and urban-planning, and so on. In this conversation, we deal with the history of some border issues, the institutional scaffolding built around them, and the increasing inadequacy of such institutions to improve the lives of borderlanders.
